HAND BADLY CRUSHED IN JOB PRINTING PRESS

Fred Glafcke, of the force of the Durant Weekly News, had his right hand badly crushed and mangled at five o'clock Wednesday evening when it was accidentally caught in the feeding apparatus of a large platen job press. An X-ray examination revealed one broken bone, a torn ligament and several deep and long lacerations, besides bruises. The broken bone was placed in splints and several stitches were necessary to close up the wounds. The press locked and jammed as the hand was caught and the help of two others was required before the injured man could get his injured hand out of the machine. He is resting easily today.
